EML Payments Ltd. To join S&P/ASX all Technology Index

EML PAYMENTS LIMITED (ASX:EML) ("EML") is proud to announce that the company has been included as one of 46 initial constituents of the S&P/All Technology Index, which launched on Friday the 21st of February giving Australia what is being dubbed as a mini version of the NASDAQ index in the US.

The new index will give greater clarity to investors tracking ASX-listed tech stocks like EML Payments, which last year also joined the S&P/ASX 200 Index.

EML Payments last week reported a 42 per cent rise in EBITDA to $19.7 million, struck on 25 per cent revenue growth to $59.2 million for the first half of FY20. The company forecast EBITDA in the range of $39.5 million to $42.5 million for FY20.

Managing Director and Group Chief Executive Officer, Mr Tom Cregan said "We welcome the move of ASX to create a listed technology index, which provides investors with a benchmark to make informed decisions, especially in relation to other sector indexes.

"EML's elevation to the S&P/ASX 200 index and the new technology index will give us a greater profile and access to both local and international investors and brokers", concluded Mr Cregan.
